DEDICATION

During our years at Woburn High, we, the Class of 2002, have been associated with many outstanding faculty and staff. Although each has helped us to reach our potential both academically and socially, we feel that one person in particular has contributed more to the class than the others.

This person has displayed his professional attitude, endless enthusiasm, and tireless effort through his continuous support in the classroom and at many of our social, academic and athletic endeavors.

Some of us have been fortunate enough to know him as a teacher, man, and friend through his activities as a coach or advisor to various clubs and activities. Others in the class have known him through his faithful support during our years at Woburn High.

Therefore, we, the Class of 2002, wish to show our sincere appreciation to this outstanding educator, coach, advisor, fan and friend by dedication our yearbook to:

On September 11 the world changed forever for all Americans. It was a confusing day as one after another we learned of the horrible events of the day. We, as a school, tried to keep you informed as events unfolded but who really knew what was unfolding. Every television in the school showed us over and over again what we couldn't believe. Could this really be happening? Was it real?

We learned that it all was real and it forever marked us. We had thought of ourselves safe from attack but found we weren't. We thought war casualties happened somewhere else but on that day they happened here. How utterly confusing; how utterly horrible it was. What a tragedy for the victims and their families.

Our reaction as a school community was to come together in a school-wide effort to help ourselves understand by helping others. We worked together to turn a day of horror into an effort to seek something better. We learned that in joining together in community we could rise above the emptiness we felt and we worked to provide support for the victims of this horrible tragedy. One of the great lessons you've learned from this experience is that in crises help is found in joining together for the common good. Take that message with you. Good luck and always be proud to be a Tanner.
